What disputes are suitable for mediation?

The “one day model” of mediation, where parties attend a day of mediation with their lawyers, is commonly associated with:

- civil & commercial disputes,

but the one day model is equally effective in almost any scenario such as

- wills, trusts & contested probate,
- workplace
- family disputes.

In civil & commercial matters, mediation is commonly used to address disputes concerning:

- Commercial contracts
- Professional negligence
- Intellectual Property
- Clinical negligence
- Personal Injury
- IT
- Construction
- Problems concerning the supply of goods and services
- Landlord and tenant
- Property
- Quasi commercial/family disputes over businesses/partnerships/inheritance
- Business reorganisation
- Boundary/rights of way
- Nuisance
- Environmental
